

As many of you are aware, the Club was reopened to Members on December 3rd. Updated COVID rules were published on the website. There, it is stated that the men's changing room would be partly opened for the purpose of changing from sailing gear into dry clothes after sailing. In addition the rules state that sailors are asked to arrive in their sailing gear and that no kit bags or clothes are to be left in the changing area. Notices in big writing are posted in each changing area to underline the rule.

On Sunday, members abided by the rules and enjoyed the fabulous winter sunshine if not the fickle wind.

Today however, as our cleaner went about her duties, she saw clothes hanging in a changing bay and a kit bag on the bench.

DISREGARDING THE RULES

I would like the person who feels they are special and can flagrantly flout the rules as well as prevent someone carrying out their job of work to call me on 0775 188 3819 and explain why.
Ian Purvis, Commodore